He cursed the tree. And that tree has been full of lessons to all the centuries since. Next morning, as He passed the place again with His disciples, Peter's quick eye saw what had happened, and he called the Lord's attention to the tree. He, instead of deducing the obvious lesson of the curse of God upon spiritual barrenness or sterility, diverged from it and deduced another, which to me is wonderful in depth and strength. What He really said was this: You see that tree; now, if you can reckon on God as I did, you may not only have the power that blighted that tree, but whenever mountains block you in you may move mountains. Evidently, Jesus in His human life did not work miracles by His divine attributes of omnipotence. He put that aside and preferred to live a...
