The earliest ray of the golden day On that hallowed spot is cast, And the evening sun, as he leaves the world, Looks kindly on that spot last. - Pierpont. No spot in Plymouth is so interesting to the antiquary as Burial Hill. Here are the sites of the Pilgrims fort and watch-tower. Here sleep the early settlers of the colony, the heroes of the Revolution and of our later wars, and the men who went down to the sea in ships and perished there, in the days of Plymouth s maritime glory. Here are to be seen the rude symbols of the sculptor s art and the crude effusions of the elegiac poet. Burial Hill is 165 feet above the sea level, and rises abruptly just back of the town s busiest thoroughfare. It is irregular in form and contains about eight acres. From this elevation the visitor has a splendid panorama of ocean and country. Nestling at his feet, between the hill and the sea, are the thickly clustering roofs of the old town.
