Extracts from Sermons and Letters. The Future State Of Unbelievers As ProClaimed By The Manner, Words, And Suffer1ngs Of The True Christ. Preached on board ship at Smyrna, 1843. Leaving us an example. --1 Pet. ii. 21. when it is considered who Christ was, when it is considered from whence He came and what He came to do, it must certainly be confessed that few or none of us pay Him that attention which He deserves. For that can be said of Christ that can be said of no other person that ever lived. Compare the lives of other men with the life of Christ, and they all sink into insignificance; whether we consider the wonderful events that adorn His history or the consequences which followed them. It may be said, indeed it may be proved, that the present civilised state...
