Excerpt: . . . in 1700, and were at that time known to date back to the ninth century. A small window opposite the fireplace looks upon the hall below. Other interesting objects in this room are some Flemish altar candlesticks 3 feet high, Jacobean period; and a wonderful old seventeenth century clock measuring 17 feet in height, made in Prague. It has a black ebony body edged with gilt decoration, and gilt embellishments at the top, with a silver face in which is let in over the dial a small painting of the Virgin and Child. It is still in good condition. Another interesting object is a wine cooler, made from the British guns used in the Armada, and with an oak stand from the wood of the captured Spanish ships. The cooler is very heavy, and bears the cypher of Elizabeth, who presented it, as well as the Tudor Rose and Crown. The crystal chandeliers are also extremely interesting, for, if local tradition be correct, these came from Venice, Van Somer, and Kneller. One picture, however, of which an illustration is given, is particularly charming. It is an oval of Lady Catherine Sidney, daughter of the 4th Earl of Leicester. The picture represents her in the act of plucking a spray of orange blossom. The colouring of the face and arms is very beautiful. The Elizabeth drawing-room, which leads from the ballroom, is full of historical mementoes, and tradition again is apparently also a little at fault...
